SEAN & JOHN exit 16w (+1)

Projected Points	Rank	Total Salary	Average Age
25,571	8	$134,386,644	25.7

Commentary

Despite having three crowns between the two of them, their best years look to be behind them. While the combination of Mike/Ant look to be a step in the right direction, Exit 16W looks to have taken a step back with the new co-ownership between John and Sean. We'll see how long this honeymoon lasts. My guess, owners aren't speaking by Election Day and team is dissolved by Christmas. A successful season hinges on the productivity from the backcourt. The frontline is full of studs (Howard/Anthony/Bosh), but Mike Miller isn't a premier talent and T-Mac needs to stay healthy. The bench isn't too bad and who knows what type of year Mount Kenyon will have with Camby gone.

PAT the munsters

Projected Points	Rank	Total Salary	Average Age
26,052	7	$121,297,664	25.3

Commentary

I was truly shocked to see Pat's squad ranked this low. Several of Pat's players are ready for big years - Brand and Wade are going to comeback in big ways. I disagree with Marty - Wade's injuries were freak accidents and he looked great in the olympics - one more season ending injury and we can call him injury prone. Although, Martin and I do agree that Iggy's production is going to be down with the addition of Brand. This squad is stacked at the center position and it is going to be ashamed to have Beidrins wasting away on the wood. A trade of one of his centers mid-season could help push this team out of the basement and into contention.

PAUL the newbie

Projected Points	Rank	Total Salary	Average Age
26,378	6	$139,353,837	29.4

Commentary

The newbie, and it showed. Paul's first pick was an incredible reach and I think the veterans of league began salivating at the thought of another "Montross" draft. Surprisingly, Paul quickly turned his draft around and snagged some stud players (Smith & Jefferson). If Odom can get used to being the sixth man, he could flourish in the role. Unfortunaley, there is little upside among this squad. Most of these players "are what people say they are" and will not surprise nor disappoint. Paul is going to have to learn quickly how to work the waiver wire to be competitive this season, as his second squad and reserves are a little lacking.

MARTY long in the tooth redux

Projected Points	Rank	Total Salary	Average Age
26,383	5	$175,590,369	29.8

Commentary

I know Marty is going to be spending this weekend, next weekend, and the next 25 weeknds coming up with some mathematical formula to get his team on the top of the rankings. IF Yao Ming and Boozer remain healthy Marty has a chance to own several bonus categories. And IF J-Kidd, A.I., Sheed, Ray Allen, and Rip don't all die (avg age - 35 yrs) at some point this season - this team looks pretty deep. But those are two MAJOR IFs. I propose the name "Long in the Tooth" be officially resurrected - Marty's team has the highest average age (29.8 - 30.2 for starting lineup) and the highest payroll ($175 million) - or we could always just call them the Yankees.

JASON

just say no (to dukies)

Projected Points	Rank	Total Salary	Average Age
26,659	4	$173,782,650	27.3

Commentary

Jason made it a point to stay away from Duke players this season, but did he also proclaim that he was going to stay away from good players too? The starting lineup is strong - Kobe & Davis are absolute beasts when they are on the court. Durant is in a bad situation and should get all of the looks in OKC, but I think he may be the weak link in the starting lineup. If Jay's second team can be motivated in their respective situations (O'Neal/Randolph/Beasley) this team could surprise. I don't blame Jason for stashing away someone like Shaq, but I'd be shocked if ever cracks the first line, let alone be a regular on the second.

TOM the crybabies

Projected Points	Rank	Total Salary	Average Age
27,477	3	$146,768,227	26.8

Commentary

I was quite impressed with Tom's draft. Coming right from work, he had no problem getting focused and drafting what is arguably the best starting five. Despite being the 3rd oldest (avg age 29 yrs), they are also the 2nd highest in projected points. And I don't care what Marty says - this team has enough top flight players - that bonus points might not even matter come season end. Tom is the only other team (besides my own of course) to have 3 Top 10 Overall talents on the squad based on the projections.

JIM the who are they's

Projected Points	Rank	Total Salary	Average Age
27,779	2	$133,559,153	27.2

Commentary

I knew that Jim's team was going to be pretty good - he stole several players we were targeting on the way back. Jim's biggest strength is the balance of his team - his first team is exactly what it is supposed to be - top tiered players for their positions. In fact, Jim's squad is the only first-team squad that I have averaging at least 20pts at each position. Amare and Granger have enough upside to give Jim a shot to make a serious run at the title.

Commentary

Two heads are obviously better than one, but this draft was just too good to be true. Getting the top pick always helps, but a strong draft from top to bottom by the new ownership team will allow Chicken Fried to establish themselves as one of the premier organizations in MartyTown. LeBron, Marion and Deron will carry this squad through most of the season and then a fresh Manu can take over in the second half. While the current center situation may be the weakest spot on both the first and second lines - mark these words - Horford will be a top 10 center by year and will be the final piece to this championship lineup.
